Things that Boom and Sparkle

...and Things that Don't

We decided we wouldn't shoot on Independence Day, and I was glad of it. The 4th of July is a family day for us. This year Desert Willow's brother hosted the cook-out. We took hot dogs and some side dishes, including Desert Willow's famous Fourth of July beans. I usually make them, but she gets the credit. Afterwards some of us went to her sister's new house to watch the fireworks, and from her front yard we had a spectacular view of the Lions Club's great fireworks show.

On the 18th, it was back to business. I wrote six stages but only used two sets, to eliminate one move of the gun cart, and also, as usual for the last match of the summer, I designed some of them to go a little faster so we would get done a little sooner. The shooter lines were "famous last words," in honor of the morons who tried (some successfully) to kill themselves on the 4th with fireworks. Shooters were saying things like, "Relax, I've done this lots of times," "Don't worry, it's not loaded," and "Hold my beer and watch this."

Also, as advertised, we took a shot at an exploding target with a 22 rifle. If you've been feeling sad that you didn't come out and shoot an exploding target, don't. We only got one to go off. But I think it was my fault, and I think I know what I did wrong, so if we ever do it again, I will do some things differently and with a little luck it will work better.

Thirteen shooters turned out for the match on a fairly cool and breezy day, and we were done before the rains came. Bad Bascomb won the match, followed by MC Ryder, Wrangler Red, Cowboy Earl, and Yours Truly. Our stalwart lady Goode Bascomb was 7th overall. Calico Cad from Arizona dropped by as he often does in July, and it was good to see Ballarat Bob and Ozark Lawdog out there. All of the scores are here: http://www.robbersroostvigilantes.com/2015Scores/July_18_2015_overall.html. We're not shooting in August. See you in September!

A Vigilante in New Mexico

By Cowboy Earl

SASS #61595, RRV #110

Only a handful of RRV members have been to End of Trail since it moved to Founders' Ranch. I went this year, and I made a trip out of it, and went to Arkansas first. It rained almost every day I was there, which made it hard to get out and shoot turtles on the ponds on the farm. Turtles eat the fish in the ponds, so I shoot them when I can.

After my Arkansas visit I doubled back to New Mexico, and fought the wind and rain all the way there. I was pulling my trailer, and I stayed at the Hidden Valley RV Park along with lots of other shooters. Founders' Ranch is dry camping, no hook-ups. Dry camping is fine for people who don't sweat. But old guys like me need a shower every day or we get to stinking.

The rain clouds followed me to the range, and it rained a lot, but my posse never got wet. That was strictly luck, and I'll take all the luck I can get. A wise man once said, "I'd rather be lucky than good." Other posses weren't nearly as lucky.

End of Trail was fun, with lots to see, lots to do, and a really great shoot. I only wish I could say the same for my score. I may have to go back next year to try and redeem myself.

And maybe some of you ought to think about trying to go with me. I think all cowboy action shooters ought to find a way to go to End of Trail at least once. They do a great job of making it a pleasure to be a shooter, and the town site gets better and better every year.

I put my cart in the gun cart contest, and it came in third. I think the judge was a liberal.
